A Series Edited by Karl Shell

FORECASTING ECONOMIC TIME SERIES, SECOND EDITION

C.W.J. Granger and Paul Newbold

The very popular and widely cited first edition of this book has now been updated to reflect the many recent developments in time series analysis and forecasting theory and practice. The chapter on multiple-series modeling has been expanded to two chapters, and the final chapter provides a survey of recent and advanced topics.

1986, 368 pp. $24.95 Paperback/ISBN: 0-12-295184-0

HOUSEHOLD AND ECONOMY: WELFARE ECONOMICS OF ENDOGENOUS FERTILITY

Marc Nerlove, Assaf Razin, and Efraim Sadka

This book integrates the theory of population into the main body of welfare economics. It is concerned with the normative implications of the so-called "new home economics" - the economics of family decisions about numbers of children, investments in their upbringing, labor force participation, and household production.

NONLINEAR ECONOMIC DYNAMICS

Edited by Jean-Michel Grandmont

Reprinted from the October 1986 issue of the Journal of Economic Theory, this volume represents a major reappraisal of business cycle theory. The work is also of interest to mathematicians and physicists interested in the applications of nonlinear dynamical system theory, deterministic chaos, and bifurcation theory.
